WATCHING THE STORM

GATHER

Hon. Wesley Gordon said it was "news" to him that a rumor was current the Department of Labor would appoint a commission to investigate the dispute between the railway managements and their employees.

That should not be "news" to the minister of Labor. He has known the conditions long ago, and taken prompt steps to make good the promise.

Canada never faced a labor disturbance of more sinister possibilities than this threatened strike of railwaymen. And it never had a Minister of Labor who understood a labor dispute develop into a strike with more complete disregard of the possible consequences.

THE WESTERN VIEW

It will be no fault of the people of western Canada if the Macmillan commission finds that Canada has no "money question" serious enough to need prompt and active attention.

At Edmonton, as at other western points, representative organizations and men stressed the need of cheaper loan money; of a central bank; and the need of volume of money correspond to the needs of business rather than to the quantity of population.

Professionals of the central provinces, however, are more concerned with the need of sinking values and prices to ruinous levels. There are ways of saying in detail that the method of issuing money is wrong.

These credit in Canada is due for an overhaul. That is the question which most directly confronts the commission appointed to advise us as to needed changes in our monetary system and financial machinery. The representations already made have been so numerous and so convincing that the commission should have come from sufficiently strong bodies to assure that the question will be ignored or slighted if the commission is to justify its existence.

Whatever may be the views presented in eastern Canada, the submissions in the western provinces show the people in the half of the Dominion recognize the need of a "managed" currency, whether based on gold or not, and the need also of some more consistent administration of it to the end that fluctuations may be less violent between times of "easy" and "tight" money.

A "BLAST" OF DISCOURAGEMENT

Europe, it is said, will need this year from 150,000,000 to 175,000,000 bushels less overseas wheat than it usually requires.

Germany and France are shipping subsidized home-grown wheat to Great Britain; a practice that does not seem consistent with the "subsidized export" terms of the trade treaty between Britain and Canada.

Germany has erected a tariff of 200 per cent against foreign wheat. Italy a tariff of 200 per cent; France a correspondingly effective barrier; and in all these countries "quota" systems are employed as a second line of defence against foreign supplies.

British growers have increased their production 50 per cent in the last two years, with the result that the Government is paying the maximum bonus provided under the law to encourage home production.

The Danubian countries have good crops, and if Russia exports more than it imports it will be doing that much more than last year to glut the markets and depress prices.

All which is far from encouraging to the expectation of a bumper crop and good prices for Canada's wheat crop. There would be no purpose in repeating the bad news, if it were not that this detailed summary of gloom-creating conditions was cabled from London the other day to explain why Premier Bennett is pushing his "tariff" to restrict wheat production in Canada.

With all respect, the moral from this formidable "blast" of discouragement evidence seems to be that the Canada Government should hunt up some markets for wheat. If the situation in Europe is as represented, our Government should be busy negotiating reciprocal trade treaties with any countries where which need foreign supplies, and canvassing the Orient for a chance to trade wheat for silver or what else may be offered there.

As against wider markets, the restriction of wheat production in Canada is no alternative. At best, restriction of production or export is but a policy of delay. If their Government forbids them to grow wheat or sell it abroad?

WHERE BANDITRY PAYS

Bandits raided a Minnesota town, shot three people, slugged a bank official, and robbed the bank. They sprayed the streets with bullets from machine guns, rifles and pistols, and escaped with the loot.

Specious moralizing to the contrary, the fact is banditry is a profitable occupation in the United States. True, a life of this kind brings its own punishment eventually, and in the end "does not pay." But the prospect of engaging in it is not concerned about the future. They live in the present, and if they did not find it presently profitable they would not be in the business.

There is only one reason why banditry is less common in Canada. It is the law-enforcement machinery which the police represent. The certainty of punishment here makes the trade too dangerous to be attractive. The "bold band man" who robs and shoots unarmed people, or people who are taken at a disadvantage, is a whining coward when he faces a law officer or a man with a barred door. He would rather even work for a living than run the risk when he knows the risk is almost a certainty.

It is not by a far cry that the police take life and property are relatively safe in Canada. That is so because we have made it so, by framing laws which make robbery as crime as they deserve, and by creating enforcement machinery that carries the law into effect, with a certainty that inspires respect in the criminal.

That we spend on this service is money well spent, and the men we employ in the service are entitled to the credit that is plainly due them.

EXECUTION KILLED SHERIFF

On this date, in 1888, the death took place of Alexander Hamilton.

By Order of the Court, the sheriff of the district under tragic circumstances.

The fourth son of Hon. Robert Hamilton, the founder of the province, he had been active as a citizen and a soldier, prominent in the suppression of the 1867-68 rebellion and a leader in the chasing back of the American raiders into the border districts in 1888.

SIDE GLANCES - By George Clark

By J. S. Cooper

While aptitudes on vacation stretching the arms and their imaginations about the fish they caught and the size of the whopper that got away.

There are 420 fishermen and their families on the west coast of Vancouver Island, and the fishing has become of the pichard run. Year after year it has shown up in shows that need to choke the millions of tons of the fish available for sale.

This year the shoal has not yet opened. Usually it pays its annual visit in July. Now it is the end of August.

Though one of the most delicate of table fish, the pichard is caught chiefly for its oil, which is pressed and refined and made into soap. For some use it is better than lard. The refuse from the presses is dried for poultry feed and fertilizer.

The particular pichard fishery now on view was here last time in 1908, when a hundred million pounds of pichards yielded over a million dollars of fish meal.

For forty miles out to sea and for hundreds of miles north and south, the coast boats have been seen, and a number of them have been seen.

"Winkler" the grizzled patriarch of the Ahousa Indians, predicted the non-appearance of the pichards this year. Does the tribal lore tell of an occasional change in the great fishery?

MOTHER SHOWS LACK OF ACT

I often wonder why test is a discredited domestic virtue, and why we never feel that it is necessary to use the same measure in dealing with our own families that we do with strangers. Yet Heaven knows it is far more important to us to get along amicably and smoothly with our husbands and wives and children than it is to smooth the fur of casual acquaintances the right way.

Not long ago at dinner in a house in which I was visiting, the small son spit soup on the tablecloth and his mother reprimanded him publicly and sharply.

"You clumsy creature," she cried, "look what you've done, spotted my best cloth. You have the table manners of a pig. Why can't you learn how to eat decently?"

To which the little chap, hurt and humiliated, responded: "Why don't you say to me that it doesn't make a bit of difference and the tablecloth has to be washed anyway, as you said to Mr. X yesterday when he spilt his coffee?"

Dorothy Dix

And I thought, why not, indeed? Why should she have been more tender of Mr. X's feelings than she was of her own little child? Why should she treat Mr. X with more consideration than she did the little boy she really loved?

Sonny sayings

By FANNY V. CORT

When Mr. A. goes to dinner at Mr. B's, he is usually invited. He tells her how beautiful and young she is looking, though he may be thinking quite the contrary; and when she asks that she is afraid the cook has a little too much salt in the soup, he says not at all, that he likes salty soup. And if the feast is tough and stringy he pulls it down without comment, and if later on at bridge his hostess tries to make him a good joke of it, and otherwise conducts himself in the way of a guest, with herself and avoid having any feeling at all.

But does he use any such tact in dealing with the wife of his house? I should say not. "Well, don't mind that," says Mr. A. "on earth make you buy that little old sheep masquerading as a lady. Makes you feel like you are getting fat and old and not do yourself up like a fapper."

"Say, this soup is nothing but brine. It is a funny thing that my intelligence can make soup every day of her life without ever finding out how much salt to put in, or how to pick out a roast that is edible instead of getting the butcher to pull off on her something that would pull a bulldog's teeth out if he tried to chew."

Is not Friend Wife any more diplomatic in dealing with her husband? For my sake, Mrs. A, are you going to tell that old story over again? Everybody who heard you tell it 40 times and it wasn't funny in the first place."

"Yes, I know that might be a little proposition for some men, but you just don't seem to have any talent for getting along, and in always being so wrong, stocks, or lend money to people who never pay back. Is that your new suit? What made you buy brown when you have a yellow complexion? Makes you look like a pumpkin. And it doesn't suit around the neck and humps in the back, and that is the worst-looking necktie I ever saw. Looks as if you had got it at the 10-cent store. Why don't you let me buy your things for you? I am always telling you you haven't any taste."

The homemaker who is interested in serving left-overs attractively will find that sweet green peppers offer a splendid opportunity to make very inviting but weather dishes.

Although peppers have many uses, they are not difficult to digest if prepared properly. They are a stimulant to the appetite, and if used raw they are especially good. As a salad or a garnish and to give a touch of color to the dish.

Interest. Blend soft cream cheese with finely chopped nuts. Pack in white shap sweet peppers which have been blanched and freed from pith and seeds. Let stand in oil for a few hours. Then remove the stems and fill with the mixture. Bake in a moderate oven for 15 minutes.

There is a thin film over the outside of a pepper leaf that is quite delicate. This film, if removed, will make the pepper look like a gem. It is found in the veins of the leaf and is found in the veins of the leaf.

Peppers are good stuffed with a combination of vegetables or with a combination of meat and vegetables. They are also good as a garnish for a variety of dishes.

Perfuming Of Tresses Old Trick

But Still a Good One, Says Glady, in Giving Rules

By GLADY'S GLAD

"America's Most Famous Beauty" A young actress who is famous for her first trip abroad, was telling me the other day that in Paris, all the smartest women are now going in for hair periancing. In that city, it seems, when you enter a salon, you are first shampooed. The Madam then washes your hair with a regular shampoo, and then she uses a special perfume to perfume your hair. After you've had your hair shampooed, she uses an emulsion, rather than a whole bottle of this chosen scent. In fact, she uses a small bottle of this chosen scent.

Glady's Glad The funny part of it is that perfuming the hair isn't a new fad but a long-standing custom. Women have employed for centuries the use of perfumes to perfume their tresses in order to make themselves more alluring to their chosen Lotharios.

However, even if it is an old-fashioned custom, it is still a very modern woman who is inclined to develop an oil, rather than a perfume, to perfume her hair. The oil is much more easily absorbed by the hair and it is much more easily absorbed by the hair. The oil is much more easily absorbed by the hair and it is much more easily absorbed by the hair.

TIMEKEEPER'S WATCH WEARIES IN MARATHON

Kissing Contest Honors in Semi-finals go to Gothamites

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Three teams of well practiced sofa-sitters survived more than an hour of tempestuous oscillating Monday to qualify for the final round of Coney Island's world championship kissing marathon.

All contestants of the catch-as-catch-can style, the three surviving couples had lapsed into a state resembling suspended animation when the timekeeper's watch began to show the strain after one hour, six minutes and 30 seconds.

No strain was visible so far as the contestants were concerned, in fact a slight trace of enjoyment was still apparent on that part of their faces that could be seen. But "break" was called.

The finalists are Helen Gould and Jerry Cardinal, Betty Burns and Frank Ferrett, Ethel Kane and Michael Callahan, all of New York and environs.

In the kiss-off, to be held Wednesday, the couple holding the longest uninterrupted snarl will be awarded the "best and flower" title. Today's free-for-all was free to the public. The final won't be.

ACCOUNTANTS CONSIDERING ETHICS CODE

Common Rules of Practice Throughout Dominion Is Aim

Chartered accountants of Canada are considering a code of ethics for the profession.

A discussion on the compilation of such a code took place at the general meeting of the Tuesday afternoon session of the 31st annual convention of the Dominion Association of Chartered Accountants now under way at the Macdonald hotel. F. M. Harvey, Dominion president, was in the chair. The address of welcome by His Honor Lord Governor Walsh and Mayor D. K. Knott featured the session.

The formulation of a code was first considered by the committee and then by the executive committee and finally considered by the general meeting and many expressions of favor were made. The action of the association is not in any way linked up with the Dominion Association of Accountants in the States, of which the action of the association is taken with a view to having common rules of practice throughout the Dominion.

No definite action was taken on the matter. It will now be referred to the provincial institutions and then returned to Dominion headquarters with their various views.

Walsh sounded a high note in his address and stressed the fact that accountants are to a large extent the backbone of business and industry. He stressed the fact that the public interest should be paramount at this point. He stressed the fact that accountants were the best of the business community.

His Worship Mayor D. K. Knott dwelt on this point in bidding the delegates welcome to the city. He stressed the fact that the city of Edmonton was a city of progress and industry. He stressed the fact that the city of Edmonton was a city of progress and industry.

C. S. Edmonds, chairman of the Finance Committee, outlined the work of the Canadian Chartered Association, official organ of the association and said that the delegates were welcome to the city. He stressed the fact that the city of Edmonton was a city of progress and industry.

Secretary A. H. Carr announced that there would be no business session on Tuesday afternoon, when the annual golf meet is being held at the Macdonald hotel. He stressed the fact that the city of Edmonton was a city of progress and industry.

E. Barnett, Tuckwell, is official secretary for the convention. He stressed the fact that the city of Edmonton was a city of progress and industry.

Alberta M. D. S. TO MEET HERE

The annual convention of the Alberta Association of Municipal Districts will be held at the Macdonald hotel, city, Nov. 22, 23 and 24, according to an announcement made on Tuesday by the secretary-treasurer, Edmund Pinchbeck, Spruce Grove.

It is expected that about 300 delegates will be in attendance. The agenda of the convention will be presented for discussion, one day devoted to the scheme of extended municipalities, and another day to present in the province, to 40.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE

YOU DID SPEND THE NIGHT WITH ANNIE—WELL, THEY'VE BEEN VERY VERY FRIENDLY.

GEE—I THOUGHT I'D NEVER GET THROUGH THAT LAST SHOT—I'M SO TIRED I CAN HARDLY KEEP MY EYES OPEN.

YES—THAT BUS TRIP WAS VERY FRIENDLY.

WE HAD TO TAKE YOUR CHAIRMAN AND OF COURSE IT WAS LATE—WHY, WE HADN'T HAD A WINK OF SLEEP SINCE LAST NIGHT BEFORE LAST—LET'S GET TO THE ROOMY HOUSE—I'M ALL IN.

SAV—YOU WERE HERE WHEN WE GOT IN—HOW DID YOU GET HERE SO QUICK?

OH, I WAS VERY LUCKY, ANNIE—I HAPPENED TO MEET A PARTY DRIVING THROUGH WHO BROUGHT ME ALL THE WAY.

YEAH? WELL, I'M GETTING PRETTY SICK OF THESE LONG JUMPS WITH NO SLEEP.

I KNOW, ANNIE—IT'S HARD WORK AT FIRST AND SMALL PAY—BUT JUST THINK OF THE REPUTATION YOU'VE BUILT UP AND THE SUCCESS AND FORTUNE AHEAD.

A Stroll in The Park — By Smith

OH, MR GUMP—WHEN I THINK OF THE NARROW ESCAPE WE HAD—STILL SHUDDER—THAT DREADFUL MAN—FAS HAUNTS ME—THE SHITTY LOOK IN HIS EYE AND THE WAY HE LIED TO US—I MISTOOKED THAT IMPOSTOR FROM THE MOUNTAIN—I FIRST LAID EYES ON HIM—YOU CAN SEE ALL I CAN DO.

HE WAS SO GOOD—HE WAS DE STROU—

WE CAN THANK OUR LUCKY STARS TO HAVE HAD A FRIEND LIKE YOU MR GUMP—I DON'T KNOW HOW WE CAN EVER THINK TO REPLY YOU.

I COULD ASK FOR NO BETTER REPAYMENT IN ALL THE WORLD—AND DE STROU—THAT A QUIET WALK IN THE PARK WITH MULL.

JUST A COUPLE OF LITTLE LOVE BIRDS—TWO CHILDREN—THERE'S NEVER WAS A BETTER-WATERED FAIR—I ALWAYS DID SAY THAT WAS THE WAY FOR MY MILLIE—WHAT A FIT THAT ANYTHING EVER CAME BETWEEN THEM.

OH, MR GUMP—YOU'RE SO WONDERFUL.

THE TINY TINKLES

Woe Duncy nung on geon and said. "Now, I'm going to ask a favor. You can grant it, sir, no matter how big it is." "My friends, the Tinkles you see are just as big as they can be of being in the water. Will you help them all get out?" Far above the driver was a very long thin boy in the chest.

He was heading in was Leavy as could be. "I'll shortly have it here," he cried. "And then I'll take a look inside. The girl will be a peasant sight. It all belongs to me."

And then the chest came into view, and there sat little Duncy, too. "Well, well!" exclaimed the driver. "I am glad to see you, lad."

"You told me you would for my chest, and I thank you and all the rest." "You're welcome," chuckled Duncy. "I am pleased to have made you glad."

The chest was hauled aboard a saw. As Duncy jumped down, he thell. My net will come in handy. Get, I have a happy lunch. "You crawl into the net and then I'll drop you in the sea again. The net is big enough so you can pick up all the lunch."

The plan worked out, when it was read. Soon all the Tinkles were inside the monstrous net. "Now, up we go," said Duncy with a smile.

"I've signalled to the driver men and he will do the best he can to haul us from the water. You will meet him, after while."

(The Tinkles join the old driver in the next story.)
